NPACE Endorses Obesity in Practice Meeting's Commitment to Practical Education for Advanced Practice Providers

THOROFARE, NJ — As obesity care grows more complex, physicians and advanced practice providers need practical education they can apply together in patient care. Healio LIVE announces that Obesity in Practice 2027 has been endorsed by Nurse Practitioner Associates for Continuing Education (NPACE), whose commitment to evidence-based education for advanced practice providers complements the meeting's multidisciplinary approach. The meeting will take place April 30 to May 2, 2027, at Kiawah Island Golf Resort in South Carolina.

Designed for clinicians who diagnose and manage obesity in everyday practice, the three-day program brings together primary care physicians, family and internal medicine clinicians, endocrinologists, OB/GYNs, nurse practitioners, physician assistants and other outpatient professionals. Sessions will address decisions they face with patients, from selecting and adjusting treatment to managing related conditions, overcoming barriers to care and supporting long-term outcomes.

"Nurse practitioners and other advanced practice providers play a vital role in helping patients navigate obesity treatment over time," said Robert F. Kushner, MD, MS, FACP, FTOS, DABOM, Program Director of Obesity in Practice. "NPACE's endorsement helps us reach more of these clinicians, both within its community and beyond it. We want every attendee to leave with evidence-based approaches they can use with the patients they see every day."

Obesity in Practice is built around the decisions clinicians make in the exam room, with interactive cases, patient perspectives and faculty discussions that connect evidence to everyday care. The program spans GLP-1 and emerging therapies, obesity-related conditions, lifestyle strategies, women's health, weight bias and treatment access—giving attendees practical approaches they can use across the full course of care. At Kiawah Island Golf Resort, the weekend schedule offers opportunities to earn CME/ABOM credits while leaving time in the afternoons to reconnect with family and enjoy the coastal setting.

“Advanced practice providers are central to obesity care, and their continuing education needs to reflect the decisions they make every day,” said Josh Plotkin, Chief Operating Officer of NPACE. “NPACE is pleased to endorse a program that brings clinicians together around evidence-based education and its practical application to patient care.”
